Got Furniture?*

CONFIRMING

Muslim's Furniture Shipment! Ever wonder why all those military age young men are traveling with the women and children crossing into Europe as refugees? This "furniture shipment" was supposed to go to the refugee camps in Greece to make life for the refugees more bearable and ease their hardships. You're looking at 52 tons of brand new guns and ammunition in fourteen big forty foot double transport containers, which followed the refugees into Europe, pretending to be furniture. Greek border guards discovered the cache. If this doesn't convince you that this Muslim immigration is nothing less than an armed invasion, then nothing will. They're coming. Like they said they would. Coming to a gun-free place of work, a school or a government building near you.

Thousands stranded as Greece becomes 'warehouse'

ELENA BECATOROS
Associated Press

ATHENS, Greece — Greece is fast becoming the "warehouse of human beings" that its government has vowed not to allow.

Hastily setup camps for refugees and other migrants are full. Thousands of people wait through the night, shivering in the cold at the Greek-Macedonian border, in the country's main port of Piraeus, in squares dotted around Athens, or on dozens of buses parked up and down Greece's main north-south highway.

On Thursday, hundreds of frustrated migrants abandoned their stranded buses or left refugee camps, setting off on a desperate trek to reach a border they know is quickly shutting down to them.

About 20,000 migrants were

Police keep rallies separated

Slovenian police stepped in Saturday to keep apart two rallies — one that supports migrants and the other that does not want them in the Alpine nation.

The two groups gathered several blocks away from each other in the capital, Ljubljana, but hundreds of right-wing protesters later marched toward about 1,000 liberals favoring open-door policies toward the migrants. The two groups shouted at each other but there were no other incidents.

Nearly half a million migrants hoping to reach wealthy EU countries have passed through Slovenia since October.

in Greece on Thursday, Defense Minister Panos Kammenos said. Of those, Macedonia allowed just 100 people to cross over.

By late Friday, not a single migrant had crossed into Macedonia that day, while 4,900 people waited nearby in heavy rain, according to Greek police.

Thousands more were heading north — about 40 busloads of people were waiting along Greece's main highway, while refugee camps in northern Greece and near Athens were full.

Greece and the migrants are caught between an increasingly fractious Europe, where several countries are reluctant to accept more asylum-seekers, and Turkey, which has appeared unwilling or unable to staunch the torrent of people leaving in barely seaworthy smuggling boats for Greek islands.

IDOMENI, Greece — Pressed against coils of razor wire and shouting "Help us!" refugees and migrants at Greece's northern border were pushed back by Macedonian police using tear gas and stun grenades, as authorities here raced to build more camps to shield the escalating number of stranded people from winter.

A top European Union official prepared to visit the region Tuesday to try and ease the crisis that produced more scenes of chaos: Syrian and Iraqi refugees and others forced their way through part of a Macedonian border fence, some clutching infants or struggling to free duffel bags caught in the razor-wire. They were met by Macedonian riot police.

Volunteer doctors said at least 22 migrants, including 12 children, were treated for breathing difficulties and cuts. Authorities in Macedonia said one policeman was injured and that dozens of

Judge blocks Indiana governor's ban on aid for Syrian refugees

INDIANAPOLIS — A federal judge in Indianapolis has blocked Republican Gov. Mike Pence's order barring state agencies from helping Syrian refugees resettle in Indiana.

Monday's ruling by U.S. District Judge Tanya Walton Pratt comes in response to a request for a preliminary injunction from the group Exodus Refugee Immigration, which helps resettle refugees.

More than two dozen states, most with Republican governors, have taken similar action to suspend Syrian resettlement programs.

Pence had cited concerns following the deadly Paris terrorist attacks when issuing the order in November.

special forces officers were flown in by helicopter to help quell a refugee protest.

"Tragically, there seems to be more willingness among European countries to coordinate blocking borders than to provide refugees and asylum-seekers with protection and basic services," said Giorgos Kosmopoulos, head of Amnesty International in Greece.

Some 7,000 migrants, mostly from Syria, Iraq and Afghanistan, are crammed into a tiny camp at the Greek border village of Idomeni, and hundreds more are arriving daily.

The Greek army completed more temporary shelters in northern Greece over the weekend, and at the government's request, local authorities in central Greece opened indoor stadiums, conference centers, and hotels that have gone out of business to house migrants.

"Of course Greece over the next one or two months will do what it can to help these people. But it must be made clear that the burden of this crisis must be distributed in Europe," Greek Prime Minister Alexis Tsipras said in an interview with private Star television.
